MR. POWDERLY TESTIFIES.

HE FOLLOWS COLLECTOR MAGONE BEFORE THE FORD COMMITTEE.

THE MASTER WORKMAN WOULD HAVE ALL AMERICAN WORKMEN SPEAK THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND NOT BE KNOWN MERELY BY NUMBERS OR BRASS CHECKS—SAYS THOSE WHO LEARNED IN HIS OWN INVESTIGATIONS.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT Terence V. Powderly would testify before the Ford Congressional Committee on Immigration to-day brought a "full house" to the room of the committee at the Westminster Hotel.

The doughy leader of the Knights of Labor did not materialize at first, however, and there was consequent disappointment, even though Daniel Magone, Collector of Customs for the Port of New York since August, 1886, was called to the stand.

Mr. Magone is a large man with a bulging brow and a serious, candid face.

He began his testimony by stating that the labor leader in a small man, whose hair has been parted by nature, a broad swath having been mowed out by time and brainwork from the apex of a truly Shakespearean brow to a point below the crown of his head.

Keen, gray eyes look out through a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles, a big iron pipe mustache hides the mouth and there is a smile in the chin.

Mr. Powderly was dressed in a well-worn suit of sheep's gray. He quickly assumed an attentive air, and listened intently to Mr. Magone's testimony.

Mr. Magone said his only connection with emigrant affairs was when the Commissioner of Emigration reported to him that an arrival from Europe was on the way, and that because he was either a pauper or criminal or an assisted emigrant, or one coming to America as a contract laborer.

Then the Collector's jurisdiction begins, and it becomes his duty to decide whether the reported emigrant shall be permitted to land or shall be returned to Europe.

A few such cases have been reported and acted upon, and the law charges the Board of Emigration with the duty of detecting improper emigrants on their arrival.

Mr. Magone read the act of Congress so charging the Commissioner, and a description followed as to the power of Congress to charge the Board, which is appointed by the State.

As to the inspection of emigrants and reporting to the Collector or violations of the Contract Labor law, the Commissioner deny the power of Congress to oblige them to do it, as the law on the point was enacted subsequent to the making of the contract with the Board.

In reply to Gen. Spaulding, Mr. Magone said the Board of Emigration did not report the cases of illegal arrivals, but he reported on contract, but that he called their attention to it.

Asked for a construction of the Foreign Contract Labor law, Mr. Magone said he thought the law was not meant to be general, but was to stop the engagement of European workers for an occasion, such as when a strike is in progress, and the employers who are on strike are not even to take their places to crush the strike.

He thought the regulation of emigration should be left to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. Ford thought so, too, and Congressmen Oates, Spaulding and Guenther nodded their approval.

Mr. Oates stated that he had inquired into the matter brought by Capt. Beardsley, and had found the charge untrue; and as to Poll's other charge, that the collector had fraudulently obtained their naturalization papers, the Collector said that he had no means of detecting that and it was not within his power to do so.

Mr. Powderly was next called. He said: "I am a machinist, but I have been General Master Workman of the Knights of Labor since 1879. The order has a membership of 600,000 in the United States. The General Master Workman has a general superintendency of the order in the interim between general assemblies."

Mr. Powderly gave his testimony in a low, deep voice. Among his listeners was Samuel Gompers, President of the Federation of Labor.

Mr. Powderly said: "Men who sell drinks, bankers, lawyers, professional politicians and general bums and loafers are excluded from our order."

"What do you call professional politicians?" asked Gen. Spaulding, "and what of his rheumatic legs with a cane?"

"Men who do nothing except during campaign times, when they hang around looking for money—strikers and loafers. We do not necessarily exclude the office-holding class."

Mr. Powderly related that an agent of his in Europe reported that on the hill-belt in all large cities in Europe were flaming posters telling how much better off people would be in America, how much wages they could earn, and how emigrants were drummed up by steamship agents.

The witness paid a visit to a Pennsylvania mine. He found the opening surrounded by a high board fence twelve feet high. Inside a low wooden building were two rows of beds. The bedding was in lack of 2 ft. There were 100 Hungarians who slept on a long pine table which was alive with mosquitoes. They were divided into two shifts. They were shoeless and of wood by themselves. They had come to take the places of the strikers in the brick and stone, and had succeeded in breaking the backbone of the strike. The mine at effect in the Lehigh region is very bad, but they finally drift into all lines of work, and they are now in the coal fields.

Mr. Powderly said that in 1849, and fifteen or twenty years ago the miners of that region were comfortably well fixed. They were mainly Irish and now more than half the miners are Moravians. They never become Americanized, bring nothing to America and usually have one woman to eight or ten men. He talked to one of these women. She said she had no alternative. Eight of the men could make a living for her. If she married any one of them they would starve.

The Henry Clews & Co. secret circular of a year ago was read. It congratulated capital on the very lively emigrant business, 10,000 European laborers having arrived at this point in one day.

"It was opportune," the circular said, "because these fresh arrivals would give the old competition in the Knights of Labor."

Mr. Powderly replied to Mr. Ford: "Most assuredly I think only evil comes from the emigration of men who may be found along the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, pick in hand, and only known by the number on a brass check attached to their suspenders. I would have no American citizen speak the English language."

In the vicinity of Pottsville nineteen Hungarians were blown up by an explosion. The miners were compelled by the mine owners to hire these Hungarians as laborers. They must carry lamps in the mines, yet they cannot read the danger signs, and this explosion was the result.

"The emigration since 1880," said Mr. Powderly, "has been very dangerous to the American workmen. There are now 1,000,000 men idle in the United States—men who would like to go to work. The Hungarians and Italians are the most objectionable, a lot of emigrants, and all emigrants who come under contract are undesirable."

He believes that violators of the Foreign Contract Labor law should be imprisoned, not fined. The man who can afford to bring over contract laborers, can pay $1,000 fine without much suffering.

Mr. Powderly said the Barbour mills, in Pennsylvania, the contractors for the State buildings, Connecticut, and other concerns which have violated the Contract law had been reported to him.

"I do not see that the cheapening of wages has been an important factor in the increase of immigration," said Mr. Oates.

"Well, we object to them. We would not let them in. Still, we have Chinese Knights of Labor. But they are civilized, educated and American-born Chinese."

Congressman Guenther remarked smilingly: "When I came over in 1866 the steamers were fearfully overcrowded, bringing from 1,000 to 2,500 passengers. Do you think that the cheapening of wages has been an important factor in the increase of immigration?"

"Most assuredly, I would force an increase of wages, which would oblige each intending emigrant to give notice of his intention some months prior to his coming; would have his pedigree thoroughly established before he was permitted to ship for America; and, finally, the cheapening of wages should be prohibited."

To Gen. Spaulding Mr. Powderly said: "The Knights of Labor have for their object the protection of labor, and the education of the workingman so that he can become a partner with his employer, sharing the profits of his labor on a basis of co-operation."

To Mr. Oates Mr. Powderly answered that the committee would be reduced to a mere advisory body, and that the committee will adjourn to-morrow and will resume its work in Boston next Monday.

IT WAS A DOUBLE SUICIDE.

Dr. Camp's Janitor Was Severed When Drowned Himself.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

NEWARK, Aug. 20.—County Physician Hewlett is to-day investigating the strange suicide of the Rev. Edward H. Camp, the well-known Presbyterian minister of this place, who died at his residence last evening after cutting his throat with a razor.

The story of the event, as told to Dr. Hewlett to-day, is the minister went to his bedroom about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and found a razor on the dressing table. He picked it up and was about to shave when he noticed something that shows weakness. If he is looking for something and you find it she will say: "Yes, I know it was there."

"She had been doing anything, or going out, if any one wants to know what or why she goes, she will say: 'That is my business.' Nothing cross, only set and headstrong."

"She had everything she could want here in a home. I came some time ago to look after her. This is the first time she has been out over the door. She was dressed in a new suit and out on errands or goes to take a little walk. But she goes far from the house. Once she was at a friend's and she left an old dress that she had torn from an old recited bill. Do you suppose anything could have happened to her?"

"The tears had been forcing their way to the sister's honest blue eyes and her lip quivered. The simple intense anxiety and the things that she was so beautiful to see. There was no trace of vexation against the old lady for wandering off and causing him to be in trouble—only that something might befall her."

The reporter cheered her up with some bright words and a hearty shake of the hand, but left her in tears over her sister.

Mr. Camp's sister was buried beyond measure to discover the dead body of her brother with the gash wounds in the throat. The shock was too much for her and she completely prostrated.

The suicide is now supposed to be due to melancholia.

Dr. Camp is believed to have left a letter, giving his reasons for the act, and the letter was found in a box in the Rev. Dr. Fowler's, who is charge of it.

Dr. Fowler, however, refused to show it or tell anything of its contents. All the parties present the letter, but the family will not let it be published after the funeral, which will probably take place to-morrow. The letter is believed to have been found on the dead man's person, and it was immediately taken possession of by his sister, to whom it was addressed.

Mr. Camp was forty-five years of age. He was a native of New York, and was a member of the Presbyterian Church. He was unmarried and had lived a life of bachelorhood. He was a great traveler, and had but recently returned from a prolonged tour in Europe, and it was immediately taken possession of by his sister, to whom it was addressed.

Two Negroes Shot in Jail.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20.—A mob broke into the jail at Sylvestre, La., on Friday night to get possession of four negroes who were under arrest for aiding a white man named Lee. They could not get into the iron cage where the prisoners were confined, so they thrust the muskets of their guards through the bars and shot two of the prisoners dead.

Broker W. H. Inman Dead.

W. H. Inman, a prominent broker and member of the Cotton Exchange, died to-day at his residence, 11 West Fifth-street. The announcement of his death caused a profound impression on the members of the Exchange.
